Pagoda Dogwood --- The 'Other' White Dogwood

Everyone knows Flowering Dogwood, Cornus florida. Did you know that its cousin Pagoda Dogwood (Cornus alternifolia) is just as stunning? Its graceful, horizontal branches provide architectural interest whether covered in flowers, fall color, or snow. And like all dogwoods, its berries are important food for birds. This understory tree prefers some shade but can tolerate full sun, and reaches about 20 feet in height and spread. This is a beauty you won't regret planting!
